

RHYL is set to be a riot of colour and fun with a series of free events planned over the next 12 months.

Games, music, entertainment and shows are just some of the activities set to hit the town's high street.

A one-day travelling circus promises to deliver all the fun of the fair in July. The event will have something for all the family including a balloon modeller, hula hoop artist, crazy mirrors, circus and magic workshops, Punch and Judy performances, and face painters. A stilt-walking ringmaster will keep the show on the road.

There will be witches and spooky goings on for Halloween and Rocking Rhyl will hit the right notes in December with a free disco for local children and a visit from a very festive guest.

Rhyl Mayor Cllr Win Mullen-James said: "All of the town council events are free, providing great entertainment and something different for residents and visitors.

"We'll have acts and activities that haven't been to the area before and, alongside the key events, we'll also be bringing some light entertainment to the town centre at Easter and Halloween.

"Our community events are planned around the larger Rhyl events, ensuring there is something happening pretty much all year around. We all have a lot to look forward to again this year."
